*Are you a young man or woman with a passion for medical science or an interest in healthcare? We are pleased to the 2017 Harvard Medical School MED science Summer program for high school students. We offer (9) one week / 5-day engaging, hands-on summer sessions on the campus of Harvard Medical School. This is not a traditional summer STEM program! Students are trained in medical skills, engaged in critical thinking, problem solving, team work, and personal health literacy. Our dedicated simulation laboratory features a high-tech simulated patient with realistic and medically accurate features- the same life-like mannequin used to train Harvard Medical School students. Additionally, students will tour various Longwood Medical area partners such as Children’s, Beth Israel, and Brigham and Women’s Hospitals as well as receive a CPR certification.
